Special to the SENTINEL by American
Union Telegraph.

New York, Sept. 23.—11 p.m.—The great Democratic torchlight procession which commenced to pass the grand stand in Union Square at 9:15, is still forming the rear division composed of clubs from Brooklyn, New Jersey and Connecticut, is admitted to be the finest in discipline and equipment. Speaking still continues at various halls and outdoor meetings and it is admitted by every one that the demonstration is unparalleled. No adequate description of it can be given to-night.

New York, Sept. 23.—The day of the monster metropolitan demonstration in favor of Hancock and English reunion and reform, opens appropriately with obliteration of the last traces of discord among Democrats in this city. The sub executive committee of the Democratic organization of the city and county of New York, is the governing committee of the regular organization as recognized by the State and National conventions. This committee, called together by telegraph early this morning, passed resolutions providing for a consolidated organization to the convention at Saratoga on Tuesday next. Union between the different organizations of the Democracy had already been arranged in other matters, but until this morning there existed some apprehension that there would be a doubt if delegates to State Convention and that a contest there might injure the Democratic vote in the State. All apprehensions on this score have disappeared, Tammany Hall promptly accepted the terms dictated by the representatives of the regular organization. There will be but one delegation at Saratoga and there is no longer a shade of excuse for pretending that the electoral vote of New York can be lost to Hancock.

The resolutions adopted by the Democratic organization of the city and county of New York, at the meeting in Irving Hall this morning, resolved as follows:

WHEREAS, Democratic sentiment in the State of New York regards unity of political action as essential to the election of Hancock and English and the triumph of the principles and platform of the Cincinnati convention; and

WHEREAS, Committees of conference have been appointed in the city of New York by the authority of the Democratic organization of the city and county of New York and of Tammany Hall to adjust all existing differences and secure a united and consolidated ticket in relation to Congressional, Assembly, Judicial and municipal nominations; therefore,
Resolved, That in the judgment of the Committee it would be judicious and magnanimous to arrange amicably between the Democratic organization of the city and county of New York and Tammany Hall the question of their respective representation at the Democratic State Convention, agreed to meet at Saratoga on the 28th inst., and appear upon the occasion as the delegates of the earnest and united constituency.

In pursuance of these resolutions, it has been determined that in one-half of the districts in this county the recognized organization shall select two delegates to the convention and Tammany hall one delegate, and in the other half of the city districts the regulars shall select one delegate and Tammany two. In this way each district will be represented at the convention by three uncontested delegates, chosen under the general call of the State committee, and the National Democratic central committee has received an affidavit from W. A. Moore, editor and proprietor of the Hot Springs, Arkansas, Telegraph, rebutting a Republican campaign slander. The New York Tribune and Western Republican papers have made the charge that the Telegraph published an account of a Democratic meeting with a rebel flag at the head of its columns. Mr. Moore states in his affidavit that he is a native of Maine, and served in the Twenty-third Iowa infantry, and that the cut in relation to which such a fuss has been made was put on by the stupid mistake of an employe in the office, who did not notice the kind of cut he was using. Mr. Moore further states that his employe told him that he would use an American flag, and the first knowledge he had to the contrary was when he read it in a published sheet after it was sent out. The fact that the use of the rebel flag in this paper was merely a mistake has long been known to the Tribune and other Republican papers, who have neglected to withdraw the charge or to publish an explanation.

Marshall Jewell has been practically deposed from the leadership of the Republican canvass. He is to remain nominally chairman of the Republican National Committee, but the real work is to be done and all authority exercised by another person. It is said that this position is to be filled by Thomas C. Platt, the immediate representative of Roscoe Conkling. This means an absolute surrender of Blaine, Garfield and Sherman to the Grant ring.

The Hancock demonstration to-night is the greatest political display ever witnessed in the United States, over 50,000 men are in line, uniformed and bearing torches, and the number of spectators at Tammany, Irving hall and about Union Square is not less than two hundred thousand. The streets are impassable between Twenty-third street and Eighth street, and the display will last until past midnight. The night is fairly turned into day, and never since the great union meeting at the outbreak of the war have similar scenes been witnessed in this city; the only defect in the demonstration is that the marching multitudes are so great that the great supply of torches is inadequate, as all along the route thousands, who came merely to look on, fall in to swell the procession. The speech of Senator Bayard is mainly devoted to a triumphant vindication of the Democracy against the slanders about Southern claims, and glorifications of the Democracy as the only true party of the country. At the Irving hall the display of fireworks and enthusiastic reception of their speakers, Beebe, of New York; Waddell, of North Carolina; Ecclesine and others, is in generous rivalry with Tammany. At the grand stand in Union Square are Senator Barnum, Mr. Smalley and Mr. Hewitt, with other members of the National Central Committee, and Major Copper and other leaders of the regular democracy, as well as leaders of Tammany Hall, besides scores of leading democratic statesmen from all sections. The clubs from the lower part of the city halted on their march to the general rendezvous to serenade General Daniel E. Sickels, who made an able and fine speech in favor of the election of Hancock and English.

An Old-Fashioned Barbecue.
Evansville, Ind., Sept. 23.—By far the largest barbecue that has ever taken place in Southern Indiana, was held to-day by the Democrats at Cobron Station, Posey county, about sixteen miles from this city. The people came literally in swarms from all sections of the country, and there were not less than 10,000 assembled on the grounds. This immense throng of people were fed by six roasted oxen, thirty-two sheep, twenty-six hogs and a large number of turkeys, geese and chickens, besides 7,000 loaves of bread, all of which were served on the grounds in the most approved style. Before dinner the people assembled were entertained by a speech from Hon. James A. McKenzie, from the Second Congressional District of Kentucky, who spoke for nearly two hours in an interesting and convincing manner.

Fire at Anderson.
Anderson, Ind., Sept. 23.—This morning, about 2 o'clock, the large two-story frame house on the corner of Jackson and Lane streets was entirely destroyed by fire. The house was owned and occupied by Colonel Graham, who, together with his family, was absent from home. A part of the house was occupied by Mr. Wilkinson, who lost nearly all his furniture and wearing apparel, upon which he had no insurance. The house was insured for $1,800 in the Firemen's Insurance company, of Dayton, which fully covers the loss. Colonel Graham also had the contents insured for $650. Several adjoining dwellings would have been burned but for the vigorous efforts of the citizens to prevent the spread of the flames.

Doings of Two Strange Negroes.
Shelbyville, Ind., Sept. 23.—Two strange negroes went, last night, to the residence of James Harper, colored, of this city and asked for lodging. They said they had been sent there by two white men, and desired to remain there several weeks. They were entertained all night, and this morning after they had left Harper discovered that $8 in money was missing out of his trunk. He had a warrant issued, and after considerable search the mysterious darkies were found and arrested. As nothing could positively be proved on them they were released. Doubt is entertained that these "coons" are a portion of the republican army of occupation which is at present settling down on Indiana in dark clouds preparatory to the October election.

The Mining Trouble in Ohio.
Columbus, O., Sept. 23.—The pickets were fired upon by the strikers last night, and they returned the fire, but as far as can be learned no one was injured. It is said that most of the miners living at Corning would return to work at a sliding scale of prices but for fear of vengeance from their associates in the Miners' Union. At the suggestion of the sheriff of Perry county the New Lexington Guards, who had a skirmish with the strikers on Sunday last, were today relieved from duty and ordered home. The other two militia companies will remain on duty for the present. The miners held a secret meeting at Straitsville to day, but nothing as to their conclusion has been made public.

Manager Morris' Benefit.
The Olympic company will tender Manager Morris a complimentary benefit on next Friday evening, Oct. 1st, at the Olympic theatre, when a grand bill will be presented. Owing to the illness of Mr. Morris, which has confined him to his bed for some time past, the company take this opportunity to show their regard for him, in tendering a grand benefit to him.

General Butler at Bluffton.
Special to the SENTINEL.
Bluffton, Sept. 23.—General Butler arrived by special train at 2 p.m. The largest political gathering ever known in Northern Indiana greeted his appearance. It is impossible to correctly estimate the crowd, but old military men place it at from ten to fifteen thousand. The enthusiasm is unbounded.

How can the South control Gen. Hancock's administration if he be elected, as claimed it will by Republicans, when they know, or should know, that in 1876 Tilden received in the North 2,682,668 votes, and in the South 1,613,982, an excess of Northern Democratic votes over Southern of 1,068,706; and that the vote at the coming election will probably be in the same ratio, and larger? No particular section of the Union will control the Hancock administration for it will be for the people of the whole country.

THEY are still leaving the army of corruption and fraud, and enlisting under the Hancock banner. One of the latest recruits is Gen. Sickles, who lost a leg at Gettysburg.

It is now believed that the war in Cuba has been brought to a close. A dispatch from Havana states that there is not a single armed insurgent on the island.

BETS continue to be offered at Indianapolis and other places in the State on Lander's election, but no takers. Landers is undoubtedly the winning card, and is so regarded by leading politicians of all parties.

THOSE Southern war claims still frighten some of the scribblers for one-horse Republican papers, who ought to know that their payment is prohibited by a Constitutional amendment.

FRANK COSGROVE is the coming man for Sheriff of Allen county, and will have so large a majority when the votes are counted, that Sol Bash will not know that he had been a candidate.

SAMUEL J. TILDEN's majority over Hayes four years ago was over a quarter of a million, and it is believed that General Hancock's majority over Garfield will largely exceed those figures.

THERE were 16,000 words in Senator Conkling's recent speech in New York, only 84 of which were devoted to General Garfield, quite as many as expected, however, coming from the source in which they did.

It seems that there was no Union soldiers to reward, so the Republican administration appointed the rebel general, Longstreet, to a high position as Minister to Turkey, with a salary of $7,500 per year. What do the stalwarts say of such things?

JUDGE TAYLOR, it is said, never spent money more freely than during the present canvass. But he is running short, the postoffice gang having failed to keep up the contributions, and the Judge is becoming discouraged. He was induced to make the race with the promise that his expenses should be paid by donations, and now he finds that he was deceived; as the State has gone Democratic. Republicans have adopted a similar course in Indiana, and the bar has been broken, but the result will be as in Maine—a Democratic victory.

THE Boston Herald, a leading Republican paper, says: "The people are getting tired of sectional strife. They want a true union of equal States, and some of them despair of seeing it under Republican rule," which is undoubtedly true; and they will make a change by electing General Hancock to the Presidency.

It is admitted by thousands that General Weaver cannot carry a single State, which he admits himself. Why, then, should Democrats in that party give their votes to Garfield by voting for Weaver. It would seem that they still possessed a little consistency, and should look at the political situation in the proper light and not vote for the bloated bondholder and goldites they have so severely condemned.

THAT celebrated dispatch from Blaine to Garfield on the night of the recent election in Maine will undoubtedly be revised, now that the official returns show a different result. That quarter of a million dollars spent by Republicans to carry the State for the Republican ticket was money thrown away, besides, it has the left party short in Indiana. Another assessment on the post office gangs will be made.

NOTWITHSTANDING Republicans spent large sums of money at the recent election in Maine to buy votes, manipulate the election returns, and committed all sorts of frauds at the polls, they have been compelled to acknowledge the most ignominious defeat the party has sustained in any State since its organization. The right has triumphed; and fraud and corruption have been rebuked in the Pine Tree State, by the people in electing the Democratic ticket.

COLONEL ROBERTSON has at last partly recovered from the sulks, with which he was attacked immediately after the Republican State nomination convention, and ventured, on Tuesday night last, to say a few words for the Republicans at Arcola. But it was a tame affair, which plainly showed that the Colonel had not entirely recovered, and is liable to a relapse at almost any time. He does not enter the canvass with the least spirit, and undoubtedly regards it a Republican funeral.

JUDGE R. S. TAYLOR, the hired candidate for Representative in Congress on the Republican ticket, is still having uphill business in the canvass, not on account of his obscurity, because nearly every man, woman and child in the district knows him, as he has been a chronic office seeker, and has visited every village, hamlet and farmhouse in that capacity, but on account of his unpopularity and want of sociability. He is not a popular candidate, nor representative of laboring men, and cannot go to Washington.

Not only are government clerks assessed to carry the election for the Republican party, but the poor laborers working on the repairs to the capitol at Washington, who are working on half time, are also assessed. The men getting $1.25 per day are assessed $8.00; those getting $1.50 per day are assessed $10.00; those getting $1.75 per day are assessed $11.00, and so on for mechanics up to $25.00; and these outrages are perpetrated alike upon Democrats and Republicans in government employ, to perpetuate Republican rule.

FOUR citizens of Augusta, Maine, have made affidavits before a United States commissioner that they voted the Republican ticket for money—$10 being the amount received in each case. The names of the men who negotiated the bribery were given, and they stated that they understood that the money came from the Augusta postmaster. Since these facts have been made public nothing further has been heard from the white-plumed knight about money having been used by Democrats. Probably not less than a quarter of a million dollars was spent in Maine by Republicans to influence voters, and nearly the whole amount came from outside the State, from bankers and United States bond syndicates in New York, and from the National Republican Committee; and all to no effect, as the State has gone Democratic. Republicans have adopted a similar course in Indiana, and the bar has been broken, but the result will be as in Maine—a Democratic victory.

"Still Harping on My Daughter."

As Hamlet could not keep the old man Polonius' daughter out of his thoughts, so Republican speakers and presses cannot keep their first sweetheart of rebel claims out of theirs. They fell so desperately in love with them at first sight, as it were, that they cease not to this day to worship them with all the fervor and devotion of a boy under the thrall of the first burst of the tender passion. They hang and caress until there is hardly anything left of them. In thirteen years $403,000,000 of them disappeared under the fervor of their embraces. In four years of Democratic control of the House, less than a hundred thousand dollars of them have found favor enough among the ungallant Benedictines of that unsuspicious body to secure recognition and allowance, notwithstanding a Republican Southern Claims Commission, composed wholly of Republicans, had allowed, certified and commended some millions worth of them to its favorable notice. It must be that Democrats are instinctively repelled, just as Republicans are attracted by the individual qualities of these claims. And the reason of it is obvious, when we come to consider that the great bulk of them has found their way into the hands of Northern carpet-bag adventurers in the South, towards whom not only the people of the South, but Democrats the world over have a feeling of instinctive aversion. So notorious has this feeling among Democrats become, that the great difficulty now is to secure just dealing with "Southern claims" at their hands. Let a single illustration suffice. These claims are mostly for cotton seized during the war, and the headquarters of the claimants is at Memphis, where by clique combinations they make up an important element in Congressional nominations. It happens that Mr. Carey Young, a distinguished public man of that city, is also a distinguished Democrat. But the election of a Democrat is not a sure thing. Under this state of things the Southern claim clique proposed to go in for him if he would promise to go in for allowance of their claims after his election. Now a Republican would of course have struck a bargain to this effect on the spot of the offer. But not so with Mr. Young. He was elected in spite of the cliques opposition and of course is not in their interest as a member of Congress.

General Butler last evening stated another fact in relation to the past allowances of Southern claims, viz: That they are always set up by pretended loyal men. And as long as there were no Southern Brigadiers in Congress, there was no trouble in proving the loyalty of the claimants; but as soon as the Brigadiers came in, the claimants began to find trouble from them. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred it was shown that the claimant was but a rebel from both the Federal and confederate service, and as such, deserved no consideration from either side; and this is the reason why so few of them have been allowed since Democrats got control of the House in 1875.

There is another significant fact about them, viz: That the great bulk of them are to be found in the hands of Republican claim agents to be collected and divided on shares. The business of these Southern claim agents was fat and flourishing until Democrats got control of Congress, but since then it has not paid expenses, and it is from this deeply suffering business interests in the Republican party that all this wail about Democrats allowing Southern claims comes. This is the cause of their "still harping on my daughter"—and we suppose they will harp, and harp. Let 'em harp. Their tune is about played out, and they will get nothing though they harp on a harp of a thousand strings.

REPUBLICAN misrepresentation of the South is rank folly. They cannot persuade thoughtful voters that a region is given up to lawlessness which raises this year six million bales of cotton, six hundred thousand hogsheads of sugar, corn and wheat sufficient for its own consumption, to say nothing of turpentine, rice and other valuable exports, or that black men are systematically robbed and maltreated when black labor raises these enormous crops year after year. Let us have a little reason and common sense from them on this subject for the few remaining weeks of the canvass.

It is quite evident that General Weaver is working for the Republicans under promise of pay. He has sold the Nationals, but whether he can deliver the goods is yet to be seen.

COL. BOB INGERSOLL is engaged in the hopeless task of teaching the Liberal League something. He told the members the other day that he wanted to knock sense into their heads.

If taxpayers, farmers and workmen desire a competent, honest representative man elected to the office of Sheriff of Allen county, they will vote solid for Frank Cosgrove, the Democratic nominee for that office. There is no young man in the county who has a better record for honesty and integrity than Frank Cosgrove.

REPUBLICAN leaders in Indiana are resorting to almost any means to carry the elections, and the State Central Committee have sent emissaries into every part of the State to whip the lukewarm members of the party and to make new converts. A few days ago a genteelly clad, heavily waxed moustached Frenchman came from Indianapolis to look after the political status of Frenchmen in our city, and among other places, called at the residence of an intelligent Frenchman on East Wayne street, where he introduced himself and told the object of his visit, claiming that if Hancock should be elected to the Presidency that he would retain the office during life, and that this country would become a monarchy; that this was the object of Democrats and the reason only they had nominated a man for President who held one of the highest commissions in the United States army, which would be used in sustaining him in power. The Frenchman listened to the Republican emissary till he had closed his speech, and then replied by saying, that he had read a great deal about politics and the political parties, and had, with many others from his native country come to the conclusion that it was the other party, the Republicans, that desired a monarchical form of government, "a Nation with a big 'N,'" a centralization of power in a single man, or a privileged few, that they desired the nomination of General Grant for a third term, and by their acts and doctrines they were disseminating, they intended to establish a monarchy here, with privileged classes as in the old country. Much more talk of a similar character was had, when the young man began to think he had called upon the wrong Frenchman, and seized his hat, shook the dust from his feet and departed. Frenchmen, and our foreign-born fellow-citizens in general, are too intelligent to be caught by false arguments, knowing full well that the Democratic party is the party of freedom; that he believes that the people should rule, and that the government is a government of the people, by the people and for the people that shall not perish from the earth.

GENERAL BUTLER'S speech last evening was a thoughtful and earnest statement from the standpoint of an independent in the present canvass. He did not profess to speak as a Democrat and almost at the outset of his remarks said: "Some may think it strange that I, a National and a Greenbacker, should be found giving you reasons why men should vote for Hancock at this Presidential election." And thence on to the close of his two hours' speech he devoted himself to a statement of these reasons. He was listened to with eagerness by all within reach of his voice. There was no joking or story telling, though there was no lack of happy and humorous hits. He was interrupted but once in the course of his speech by a question from some unfriendly Republican in the crowd, but the question was so promptly and effectually squelched by the instantaneous retort that no others followed it. Upon the whole the speech was able and convincing, and as we think, will be productive of great good among reasonable Republicans and Greenbackers alike.

REPUBLICANS seem to be oblivious to what their leading newspapers said about the Garfield frauds at the time of his investigation by the Poland committee. He was then damned by the entire party for his connection with the Credit Mobilier and De Golyer frauds. See the New York Tribune, the New York Times, and other leading papers of that date. They did not hesitate to condemn him in the severest terms at that time. The damned spot remains upon his record and cannot be blotted out.

In 1876 the Democrats polled 1,361,312 votes in Connecticut, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, together and the Republicans 1,852,821. The Democrats will carry six of these States in November, which will elect General Hancock with a couple of States to spare.

BAD reports about Mr. Sol. Bash, the Republican candidate for sheriff, come from Stark county, Ohio, where Mr. Bash formerly resided. The "God and morality" party, that claims him as their candidate, should look after these reports and if found true, Mr. Bash should at once withdraw from the race.

Story of a Dog That Stood Guard Over a Child on the Railroad Track.

A gentleman just returned from Canada tells the following story: "A day or two ago the engineer of a train near Montreal saw a large dog on the track, barking furiously. The engineer whistled, but the dog paid no attention to the noise, and refused to stir. The dog was run over and killed. The engineer observed that the animal crouched close to the ground as he was struck by the cowcatcher. A minute later the fireman saw a bit of white muslin fluttering on the locomotive, and he stopped the engine. On going back to where the dog was killed it was discovered that not only the dog, but a little child, had been killed. It was then seen that the dog had been standing guard over the child, and had barked to attract the attention of the engineer. The faithful animal had sacrificed his life rather than desert his charge. The child had wandered away from a neighboring house, followed by the dog, and it is supposed that the child lay down and went to sleep on the track."

A Family's Singular Ill Luck.

A day or two ago Theodore Boss, of Trenton, N. J., aged 19 years, while out gunning dropped his gun, and the weapon striking on a stone, both barrels exploded, the charge entering the lad's side and inflicting a wound from which he shortly afterward died. The boys parents were notified of the accident, and while driving rapidly, on their way to visit the dying boy, their carriage struck a large stone and overturned, precipitating the occupants to the ground. The gentleman sustained several severe cuts and bruises and the lady's arm was so badly broken that she will not be able to leave her bed for several weeks. The carriage frightened the horse when it overturned, and the animal ran away, demolishing the vehicle and injuring itself badly.

The Pleasures of Hope.

When the body is bowed with pain an intense longing for relief brings hope. This may brighten the suffering, but it does not cure. At a time like this how welcome is such a friend as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, bringing hope, health and happiness and the joys of a renewed life. sept 20 eod & w 2w.

A MIDNIGHT INTRUDER.

Samuel Houser's Dreams Disturbed by a Supposed Lunatic.

This morning, about 2 o'clock, Samuel Houser, a conductor on the Pittsburgh, and residing on Clinton street, was awakened by cries of "murder," "They're going to kill me," and other similar exclamations. The cries were also heard by the other members of the household, and soon after a most unearthly racket was heard at the kitchen door, and Mr. Houser's daughter came to his room, thinking to awake him, but he was already up and on his way down stairs. While he was going down the kitchen door was broke down and some one rushed in, presently followed by some others. Mr. Houser waited in the hall, and the parties stood in the kitchen conversing for some time in a low tone. Finally Mr. Houser procured a light and went out into the kitchen, when two of the party (there were three in all) started out the door, and ran away. The third party also attempted to get away but he remained at the forcible request of Mr. Houser who just caught him by the collar and lugged him into the sitting-room where he held him while his son went for the police. Officer Stahlut soon appeared on the scene and proceeded with his man to the calaboose. The fellow resisted arrest desperately and gave great trouble to the officer. It is not supposed that the captured man had burglarious intentions, but two fellows who were arrested this morning and who are thought to be his accomplices may have had designs upon the house. The fellow who was caught in the house appears to be insane and persists in saying that he was pursued by parties who wanted to murder him, and that he broke in the door in order to get away from them. The case is certainly a very singular one.

Picked His Pocket.

While a man named Simmons was standing in the crowd listening to General Butler's speech he was relieved of a watch and chain, valued at about $40.00. When he discovered his loss he made it known to the crowd, but no clue could be obtained to the thief, and it is highly probable that the man will never behold that watch again.

The complimentary concert to Miss Belle McDonald will be given in the Academy of Music, on Monday evening, September 30th, reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

BUTLER'S BOOM!

It Takes This City by Storm.

Enthusiastic Reception of the Great Statesman by Our Citizens.

One of the Most Brilliant Speeches Ever Made in This City.

Full Account of the Great Celebration.

The court house square never presented a more brilliant or pleasing aspect than that which it assumed last evening on the occasion of the address of the Hon. Benj. F. Butler to the citizens of Fort Wayne. There was an unusual desire among our citizens, both to see and to hear the great statesman, whose name has become famous throughout this broad land, and judging from the immense throng that filled every available space on the square it really seemed as though half the city had turned out to do honor to the occasion.

Chinese lanterns were hung from the east end of the Court House across Court street to the Foster building and the dim light emitted from them produced a most brilliant effect. A cannon, situated in the Court House yard, belched forth a fiery flame at intervals and caused everyone within a mile of it to jump with fright.

General Butler, who spoke at Bluffton yesterday, missed the afternoon passenger train and was forced to lay over until six o'clock last evening, and then had to take the caboose of a freight train in order to reach the city in time. He arrived, however, at 7 o'clock, and was met at the depot by the First Voters, headed by the city band. He was escorted to a hack in waiting by Messrs. Randall and Hettler and the procession proceeded to the Aveline House, where the general partook of a light collation and proceeded at once, in company with several distinguished citizens, to the speakers' stand at the east end of the court house, where the party arrived at precisely eight o'clock. The appearance of Gen. Butler was the signal for a spontaneous burst of applause, which lasted for several minutes. After some little delay, ex-Mayor Randall came forward and introduced the distinguished speaker of the evening. The general then arose and proceeded to the front of the stand, but he could do nothing but bow, his compliments to the multitude, which continued to cheer for nearly five minutes. When quiet had been restored the speaker began in rather a low voice, which, however, increased in volume as he proceeded. He said that he was greatly fatigued, having traveled over two hundred miles without any rest, and was in no condition to speak, but would make the effort, at all events. It was no time, he said, for joking, but a time for cool, calm consideration. He alluded to the impending struggle, and to the great responsibility now resting upon every one to do his duty. He said

A CHANGE is needed in the government, and expressed himself as confident that the change would certainly take place. He attacked systematically the corruption of the party in power, and laid bare many new intrigues and crimes which have been committed by it in order to retain its grip upon the country, but the day of retribution is at hand, and that party which has for so long a time held the country as in a vice, will be buried from sight beneath an overwhelming majority.

He advised the coalition of Democrats and Greenbackers against the common enemy, and felt confident that such a union throughout the entire land would lead to glorious results. The speech was characterized throughout by the absence of any personal abuse of the opposition party and dealt only with solid facts. It lasted two hours, and the speaker was at times compelled to give up speaking owing to the tumultuous applause. At the close he proposed three cheers for Hancock, which proposition was met by a perfect storm of applause, which continued for some time. When the enthusiasm had quieted down to some extent, the vast crowd began to disperse, and after the speech the street corners were crowded with persons who had heard it, and who dwelt upon its various merits to their hearts content. Nothing occurred throughout the entire evening to mar the occasion, and everything passed off in a most pleasant and agreeable manner.

THE FAIR

Last Night the Most Successful One Thus Far.

The fair was by far better attended last night than any night since its opening and every one in the vast throng that surged and sweltered in the Academy seemed happy, notwithstanding the fact that the place was a perfect jam of people and it was almost impossible for one to turn around. But everybody took it in good parts, as a matter of course. They came to have a good time, and little obstacles were not to be taken notice of.

The stands all did a good business and the bouquet and badge vendors reaped a harvest. The wheel of fortunes were going around continually and the ringing, merry laugh of the gay girls and their cavaliers, as they circled round with the music of the band, produced a most happy effect and made every one appear cheerful. The fair will be a great success, and those who have not yet visited it should take advantage of the two remaining nights and help along a worthy cause. The vote for the cigar sign at the close last night was as follows: "Pearl," 217; "36," 146; "Red Bird," 116; "Golden Ball," 103; "Pony," 15; "Sentinel," 15; "Charm-er," 7.

On the flag the vote stood: Garfield boys, 1,252; Hancock boys, 1,112.

The total receipts of the evening were $515.75.
